THE GORDON'S MILL FARMING CLUB 1758—1764

J. H. SMITH

Eighteenth-century farming clubs played an important part in the history of British agriculture.

The Minutes of the Gordon's Mill Farming Club are therefore extremely valuable, showing as they do how a small group of lairds, farmers and university scholars set about the task of applying the new scientific knowledge of the mid-eighteenth century to their own circumstances and needs. Membership of the Club included several important figures such as Sir Archibald Grant, Robert Barclay, Francis Douglas, and Dr Thomas Reid, and had as its secretary Dr Thomas Gordon, Humanist at King's College, Aberdeen, whose insistence on a proper understanding of the purpose and method of agricultural experiments was an important contribution to the history of Aberdeenshire agriculture.
