NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Shimon Applebaum, B.Litt., D.Phil. (Oxon), served with the British forces in the Middle East 1940-5, and has had practical experience of agricultural work in Kent, Samaria, Galilee, and the Sharon. He has also carried out excavations and published articles in a number of archaeological journals. Since 1956 he has been investigating the ancient agriculture of the Negeb as a research fellow at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Alan Simpson, M.A., D.Phil. (Oxon), is associate professor of English History at the University of Chicago. He is engaged on a study of the estates of Nicholas Bacon and other East Anglian gentry.

Alan Harris, M.A. (London), lecturer in geography at the University of Hull, is at present working on the agricultural geography of the East Riding.
